The construction of the West Side Elevated The construction of the West Side Elevated Railway on Greenwich-st. and Ninth-ave. is advancing with great rapidity, over 300 men being at present actively employed in the work. Two factories are engaged in manufacturing the iron rail required. The one in Harrison-st. runs night and day, and the other, near Ninth-ave. is in operation from 6 o'clock in the morning until midnight. The branching iron columns, which will support the track, are springing up all along the route, about 20 being erected every 24 hours. In the lower and crowded part of the city, this work is done at night, and it is probable that all the columns required in Greenwichst. will be in place within ten days; and the work of faying the beams upon them is likely to be commenced next week. The managers do not seem at all disturbed by the prospect of an injunction, but expect to get the entire road in running order before the list of September. —

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—The vicinity of Penny-Bridge near this place is infested by a band of desperate rowdies, whose only occupation seems to be that of disturbing the peace. They have already given the authorities much trouble by their reckless conduct. The last complaint against them is that of Mr. Terry, a wealthy owner of a large farm in the neighborhood. It seems that gentleman employs a number of farm hands, whose habit of working before 7 o'clock in the morning and after 6 o'clock in the evening, does not please the rowdies aforesaid. Hence, these latter have resorted to every kind of device to make the farm hands either quit their employer or exact of him that they be required to work only during the usual laboring hours. The men, who above themselves well pleased with their situations, refused to do either. The consequence was that violence was threatened against all, and perpetrated upon some. Four of the assaulters of the farm hands have been arrested and are now awaiting examination. On Sunday morning last, some of the band to which the assaulters belonged posted upon the gate leading to the estate of Mr. Terry, a paper giving notice that if labor were exacted on the farm hands before or after customary haboring hours, the foreman of the men might expect some sovere handing from the party giving the notice. Immediately on seeing it, Mr. Terry went to Hastings and procored a warrant for the arrest of some known members of the gang. Three or four of them have been arrested, and will to-day, be brought up for examination.

THE CHINA TRADE.

Hememan agt. Heard.—This was a suit brought in the Supreme Court, by a house in this city, against the Messrs. Heard of Boston and Canton for an alleged failure by the latter to fill an order for teas and rerecled slik given by the plaintiffs and accepted by the defendants. The plaintiffs in December, 1864, sent an order to the defendants to buy tea at 9d. sterling, and rerecled slik at 18s., accompanied by a letter of credit of $15,000, which was to expire July 1, 1865. A subsequent order was sent modifying, in some respects, the previous order, and this was also accepted. Heard & Company never fulfilled the order, and the plaintiffs claimed that they had thereby lost $85,000, which they claimed as damages against Heard & Co. The defendants denied that they had ever been able to fill the orders at the rates limited by the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs put in a large amount of testimony to show that during the month of June 1865, teas and sliks might have been bought within their limits, and as to the amount of their loss by not receiving the goods. It appeared however, that rerecled sliks were not in the general market, but had to be contracted for. On the closing of the plaintiffs' testimony. Connsel for the defendants moved to dismiss the complaint on the ground that, the letter of credit requiring bills of lading to be sent with each draft, the plaintiffs should have shown that there was a ship ready during that month to give a bill of lading for the goods, and that the proof so far as it went was that there was no snip at Whampon in that month available, and that aside from that the proof failed to show that their ordinary mercantile diligence, defendants could have filled the order at the prices limited. The Court granted the motion, but allowed the exceptions to be heard at the General Term in the first instance. Hememan agt. Heard .- This was a suit

Coroner Keenan, yesterday, concluded an investigation into the circumstances attendant on the death of the infant of Eliza Hetzel, the woman who was sumployed as a domestic at No. 239 East Forty seventhat., and gave birth to a child, in the cellar of that residence, a week or two ago. The mother and child were removed to Bellevue Hospital, and soon afterward the infant died. A post mortem examination by Dr. Wooster Beach, showed that the infant's skull had been fractured, and it is believed that this was the result of violence on the part of the mother. Several witnesses were examined yesferday, but hone of them could testify positively that the woman had caused the start of her child. The circumstantial evidence was so strong against her, however, that the jury rendered a verdict accordingly. The woman is still confined to her bed, in Bellevue Hospital. As soon as she can be removed with safety she will be committed to the Tomba by Coroner Keenan to await the action of the Grand Jury.

NEW LIGHT ON AN IMPORTANT SUB-JECT-AN ESSAY FOR INVALIDS.

There is no fact better established than that Diffusive Stimulants are required for medical purposes. The most strenuous advocates for Prohibitory Liquor Laws concede this; every statute prohibiting the sale of alcoholic fluids to the community at large contain a saving clause permitting their sale for the use of the sick, under the guarantee of the physician's certificate. Thousands of invalids in every State of the Union are now taking these stimulants daily under the advice of professional men. They form a part of the remedial stock of all public and private hospitals; and are prescribed, in certain classes of complaints, by medical men who rank among the stanchest pillars of the temperance cause.

Of course it is of the highest importance that the liquors administered as restoratives should be pure and uncontaminated. No member of the faculty desires to poison his patients. On the contrary, it is the earnest wish of the whole profession to prevent the introduction of bad alcohol into the sick chamber. Like conscientious men, with a due sense of their responsibilities, they say, "Get the very best." But where is a pure or even a safe article to be got? Price, it seems, is not the measure of value. Brandy sold at the rate of seven dollars a bottle ought not to be charged with amyle or fusel oil, or impregnated with ascetic acid, tannin and plum juice; but Chemistry says it is. The tests and reagents applied to it by one of the most distinguished scientific men in this country have proved that this socalled brandy, costly at is, contains not one drop of the spirit of grape; but is a compound of half-rectified alcohol, water and variety of flavoring substances. And on comparing its constituents with those of "ten cent rum," it is found that as regards unwholesomeness there is nothing to choose between them. There is, however, one stimulant and tonic, not sold or used as a beverage, which may be prescribed with safety for all who need a stomachic and invigorant; and its vast and continually increasing sale argues well for the common sense of the people, and for the cause of temperance. Many eminent physicians in all parts of the United States and in Spanish America have discarded the liquors of commerce from their medical repertory, and adopted Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in their stead. In thus following the lead of an observant and upprejudiced public, they have done well; and, perhaps in the fullness of time, the whole profession will follow their example. The reasons given by the physicians who have taken the initiative in this matter for giving this wellknown vegetable tonic a preference over all other stomachics are these: That they believe its stimulating basis to be unadulterated; that its botanical ingredients produce a permanent tonic effect; that it has powerful anti-bilious properties; that it has a mild aperient quality; that it has a composing influence on the nervous system; and last, but not least, that it does not create that craving for excitants which is inseparable from the frequent use of unmedicated liquors.

Surely it is important that facts like these should be universally known. If it is to the interests of the manufacturers and proprietors of the articles to publish them far and wide, it is no less to the interest of the millions to read them and heed them. In a tempest, the shipwrecked mariner who finds himself going overboard, with the life-boat on one side of him and the sheet anchor on the other, naturally clings to the buoyant craft instead of the sinking iron; and, in like manner, the invalid, with a choice between a fiery poison and a salubrious antidote, will be likely to reject the bane and accept the balsam. The recent exposures of the mysteries of liquor-mixings, which have been made through the newspaper press, might properly be styled the retributive justice of Science. Chemical research led to the discoveries which have enabled unprincipled men to pervert the products of the still, and simulate pure stimulants with pernicious compounds; and chemical analyses, conducted by men of principle, have laid bare the mystery of iniquity, and put society on its guard against cunningly devised poisons. One thing is certain, viz.: that however beneficial a pure diffusive stimulant might be in certain varieties of disease, or as a safeguard against malaria, or of the effects of a change of water, an excitant charged with poison must always be injurious. Even poisonous water is less dangerous than empoisoned liquor; and for the sufficient reason that the alcoholic principle carries the poison almost instantly into the circulation, whereas water does not possess the same diffusive power. But when, as in Hostetter's Bitters, a thoroughly rectified spirit is made the vehicle of the most hygeian herbal juice, the effect of the compound is necessarily healthful.

All that chemistry has revealed to the public, under the sanction of authority, in the City of New-York, has long been known to the initiated. But the wealthier classes have, heretofore, consoled themselves with the belief that although poison was vended in the common dram-shops, the respectable bar-rooms, where they took their tipple, kept no such deleterious stuff. That illusion has now been forever dispelled. The articles purporting to be Martel and Hennessey Brandy, or pure Bourbon, turn out to be generally on a par with the Five Points burning fluids; and in some instances much worse. Undoctored liquors are not obtainable in the ordinary course of trade either in the bar-room or from the spirit-merchant. Those of foreign origin are very far from being pure when exported, and usually twice or thrice adulterated after they reach our shores. The truth is, however, that there is no imported liquor in seveneighths of the stuff sold as foreign spirits in this market. Most of it is the product of corn or potatoes, only partially rectified, mixed with larger quantities, and then fired up, to disguise its lack of the alcoholic principle, with acid chemicals. Persons who drink this terrible "fire-water" can no longer plead ignorance of its deadly properties. The whole subject has been thoroughly ventilated, and the late chemical demonstration will probably do more for the cause of temperance than all the exhortations to sobriety that ever were written. Prepared and sold by
